As he went out the window he grabbed the right-hand shutter and tore out several slats, but falled to get hold. This made considerable noise, which attracted Night Clerk Lee Steele and Night Porter George Sestrunk. They had been sitting out in corner of Fourth avenue. There, three man about to be dashed to death. Mr. Steel ran into the office and up the stairs feet below.

On reaching the door of his room they found it locked. However the key on the inside was half turned, which made it possible to insert the pass key and unlock the door. Then began the hard work. Mr. Davis is a short man, weighing fully 230 pounds. Both Mr. Steels and Mr. Sestrunk are medium-built men and the task of pulling him in was very difficult, besides having the mental strain upon their minds that that they might let him get away from them. Having scarcely any garments on, it was Boubly hard to get any purchase. After working for a few minutes, which seemed like hours to the suspended man and those who were alding him, he was safely pulled into the room. All three
